Location:

Newlyn is a town and fishing port in South West Cornwall forming a conurbation with the neighbouring town of Penzance. Newlyn harbour is the largest fishing port in England and has a growing reputation for restaurants and casual dining. Due to Newlyn's established association with the creative arts, there are also a number of artists and art galleries in the area.

The Meadery occupies a prominent position on The Coombe and is approached via a footbridge which provides a sense of arrival and exclusivity. Within a short walk of the harbour and fish market, Newlyn Art Gallery and The Filmhouse.

Description:

An early 20th century cinema converted by our client's family in 1964 to provide a medieval themed wine bar, which was expanded 10 years later to comfortably accommodate up to 130 covers in the first floor restaurant. An impressive atmospheric venue, which with the bridge access, creates an ideal sense of exclusivity for diners for over 60 years. A successful family business available for sale as a going concern.

All areas are approximate and measured in accordance with the RICS Property Measurement (2nd Edition).

The business provides year round trade which peaks in the Spring to Autumn months where opening hours are extended. The Meadery is a well known themed restaurant in the area and has been enjoyed by customers for 60 years - often children coming back as adults with their own children to enjoy the experience. Our client's are now looking to make a lifestyle change and with no family to take on the business they have decided to sell. A straight forward business to run, supported by a loyal team of staff, our client's are looking for a buyer who understands and enjoys the current concept as much as they do.

Trading accounts will be made available to interested parties subject to a non disclosure agreement and proof of funding. The business has its own website www.newlynmeadery.co.uk and is being sold as a going concern where TUPE will apply. The images do not do justice to the feasting hall and we recommend interested parties to visit as customers in the first instant to fully appreciate the concept.
